RPS acquires BPIM and strengthens Riello UPS's direct presence in Belgium and the Netherlands

The transaction consolidates Riello UPS's commercial presence in two strategic markets

Legnago, 29th September 2026. RPS S.p.A., a company of the Riello Elettronica Group and owner of the Riello UPS brand, is expanding its international presence through the acquisition of BPIM BE and BPIM NL (BUSINESS POWER INFRASTRUCTURE & MANAGEMENT), which have operated as Riello UPS distributors in Belgium and the Netherlands, respectively.

The transaction, signed on 5 August 2026, represents an important step in RPS's international strategy and strengthens the Group's presence in two countries that, combined, account for approximately 10% of the European Union's GDP.

In Belgium, BPIM BE has represented Riello UPS for many years, supporting its steady growth and contributing to the delivery of significant projects. The presence of strategic infrastructure and international organisations in the country supports the demand for solutions for critical applications, where power continuity and reliability are essential.

In the Netherlands, BPIM NL was established more recently with the aim of further developing the business and capitalising on opportunities in a particularly dynamic market. The country is one of Europe's leading data centre hubs, driven by increasing digitalisation and the presence of major technology operators.

Both companies already have a solid service organisation capable of operating directly in their respective territories and providing a full range of services related to the installation, maintenance, and support of our UPS systems.

The acquisition enables RPS to integrate two well-established businesses directly into its organisation, strengthening relationships with customers and partners while increasing its ability to manage larger and more complex projects.

"The acquisition of BPIM in Belgium and the Netherlands represents a strategic development decision rather than a purely corporate transaction," says Fabio Passuello, CEO of RPS S.p.A. "We know these markets well, as well as the people who have developed them for Riello UPS. Moving to a direct presence allows us to be even closer to our customers, respond quickly to evolving demand and take on increasingly complex projects. It is an important step in the development of RPS's international network, in line with the growth path the company is pursuing."

"Belgium and the Netherlands are different territories, but they share a high level of technological maturity and significant development opportunities," comments Roberto Facci, International Sales Director of RPS S.p.A. "In Belgium, we aim to consolidate a position built over the years through important projects; in the Netherlands, we intend to accelerate our presence in a market strongly driven by the data centre sector. Our direct presence in both countries will enable us to work in a more structured way with strategic customers and fully realise the potential of these markets."

A key element of the transaction is management continuity. The management of both companies will remain under the leadership of founder Jürgen Amelinckx, who will continue to guide their development, supported by Tim Van Cutsem in Belgium and Ynze Alkema in the Netherlands.

Maintaining the current management team will ensure continuity in relationships with customers and partners, while enabling the companies to benefit from the expertise, resources, and coordination of an international group.
With this transaction, Belgium and the Netherlands become part of RPS's direct network, creating new opportunities for Riello UPS to develop major national projects supporting critical infrastructure.
